

ABSTRACT

A device (2) for scanning or copying a document and for storing a scanned image or image to be copied, includes a document support (4), a reader (6) and a storage device (8). The storage device (8) includes bi-stable components. The bi-stable components consist of several alternating layers of organic material and electrodes.